SHE LOST IT AT THE ASTOR

Oh, she had to go and lose it at the Astor.
She didn't take her mother's good advise.
Now there aren't so many girls today who have one.
And she wouldn't have let it go at any price.
They searched the place from the penthouse to the cellar.
In every room and underneath each bed.
Once they thought they saw it lying on a pillow.
But they found it belonged to someone else instead.

Oh, she had to go and lose it at the Astor.
She didn't know exactly whom to blame.
And she couldn't say just how and when she lost it.
She only knew she had it when she came.
They questioned all the bell-boys and the porters.
The chef appeared to be the guilty guy.
The doorman also acted quite suspicious.
But he coyly said, "I'm sure it wasn't I."

But she had to go and lose it at the Astor.
It nearly killed her mother and her Dad.
They felt as bad about the thing as she did.
For after all it was the only one she had.
They just about completed all their searching.
When the chauffeur walked up with it in his hand.
All they did was stand and gape.
There was Minnie's Sable cape.
And she thought she had lost it at the Astor.
